

What The Bible Says To Me.

Michael S. DeBurger 8-26-2016

For very many in the Judeo/Christian religious world, the Bible is taken to be a book of laws handed down through the ages for the sole purpose of helping God's creatures "behave themselves." Even to folks outside of this immediate sphere of influence one is usually no stranger to having "The Word of God" used on them by some well-meaning Christian Zealot. Somewhere along the way the message of the Bible has been lost through the passage of time and the result is that it has been adopted as a tool in the never ending quest for power in an effort to control masses of people to further this purpose or that.

There is just so much in the way of dogmatic rhetoric that many of the religious of today process, parse and regurgitate the clichés in a quest for a "meaning" to life they can "get on board" with. The result? A cornucopia of denominations of faith-based institutions. So many "choices" that if you ever find yourself seated in a Church somewhere you can pretty much be assured they are getting it wrong and giving it that way to boot.

Don't get me wrong, the Church as an organization has the potential to do much good for their individual communities but this is more a function of their charitable tendencies more than anything presented in their confessed theology. Many folks rarely read their copy of "The Holy Bible" and depend on those called to the ministry to spoon feed them whatever it is they need "spiritually." The problem is that the Bible is like a box of "Lucky Charms" cereal and the Church is only giving the congregation the marshmallow bits.

The Bible really does tell the truth about our existence in a language even a child can understand. The problem is that the story it tells is one that even the greatest minds will have trouble getting completely wrapped around - and that's okay, we are not really expected to understand every aspect of what is going on here, else what would God be for? It is however possible to grasp an explanation that would make sense to child and scholar alike. It contains an explanation even an atheist could embrace. Many theists will not like it though, because it does point to the reason for Jesus and what it was he was "sent" to do.

In order to begin to understand what is going on in this life, on this planet, in this galaxy, of this universe, in this space/time dimension one must - of necessity - accept (for the sake of argument) that a supernatural reality indeed exists. That should come easier to the child and the theoretical physicist than your average Joe Six-pack / Body-in-the-pew but with an open mind I think it is possible to grasp the overarching story of the Bible without getting bogged down in messianic prophesy, vain struggling about the law, etc.; a story that should prove agreeable to creationists and evolutionary enthusiasts alike. Threats made by God (and Clergy) become of no effect once we begin to realize that there is but one God, one purpose and Grace means we can all know we are fulfilling his plan by simply living our life. Sounds too good to be true? That's why it's called the "Good News!"

The following views are gleaned from a rather haphazard reading of the Bible (both Old and New Testament King James NKJV CLV and others) but a reading none the less. There are, of course many learned men that have ferreted out many observations and of course the numbers of folks studying the Bible for clues as to its prophesies for the future are legion. These views have come to me after many years as a believer in the salvation afforded me by the purported death, burial and resurrection of Jesus but it has only been fairly recently that this whole business ever began to make perfect sense. I feel at this time I must perform my very best Rod Serling impersonation as I invite you to

Of Angels And Man

Michael S. DeBurger 8/26/2016

When God created Man he created him as a spiritual being but with a solid form. This creature was much like an Angel but was created in order that God's Holy Spirit would increase. Angels are creatures made of spirit but do not have the ability to multiply in their heavenly realm. A domain was prepared for the existence of these creatures so that their survival would be assured. It was important however that in addition to a free will these creatures should be endowed with a desire to multiply. The garden prepared for man was a test-bed of plant and animal reproduction and even Adam was an animal creation specially designed for God's Holy purpose. It was his desire to reproduce that God intended and which led to his desire for woman.

Adam was obedient to God's will and did all that was asked of him. In this way Adam was very much the perfect Angel but still Earthly in make-up and very much alone. In order that the reproduction mechanism be established it was the work of God that extracted from Adam the complementary creature to be known as Eve. The resultant creature of woman being made from the man resulted in a corporeal being that lacked a certain aspect of the spiritual being that made her receptive to outside spiritual forces. The removal of a portion of the spiritual being from Adam also left him with the ability to receive the spiritual attachment as well. Prior to Eve, all of God's creations were completely made up of his Spirit but unable to multiply. The ability of Eve to receive a spiritual "attachment" (never having known a complete spiritual connection to God) was the desired outcome of her existence and Satan (being God's Chief Angel and ultimate creation) was sent to attach his spirit to that of Eve. The time was right to send Adam and Eve (possessed by the spirit of Satan) into the World to begin the process of growing the Spirit of God.

Adam entered the world with a spiritual deficiency and Eve entered the world with a completeness in the combined spirits of good (God) and evil (Satan.) When Adam and Eve had a child it was born as a combination of Adam's spiritual void with a measure of Eve's spirit of Satan. When Eve again bore a son that son also received a measure of Satan's spirit along with the ability to receive even more spirit but with no other spirit available that void would go unfilled. Ultimately when Cain slew his brother Abel, the life spirit of Abel was returned to God (who gave it) but the portion of Satan's spirit remained in the Earth and was able to attach itself to Cain (due to the spiritual void aspects of his being) and in so doing Cain was now carrying a double measure of Satanic spirit.

With this mechanism in place the spirit of Satan was allowed to multiply upon the Earth and the Essential Life Spirit was also multiplied. It is the spirit of Satan that is responsible for death; for only in death is the Spirit of Satan multiplied and this becomes the catalyst for the increasing supply of spirit being delivered back to the father. At a certain point other of God's creations were sent to earth to increase the available spirit by mating with women and creating a race of Human / Angel hybrids known as Nephilim (or Giants.) These new creatures were human (with the measure of Life plus Satanic spirit that entails) yet possessing a partial Angelic spirit from their heavenly fathers that soon entered the world resulting in more and more humans being born with an overabundance of angel spirit which was supplanting the required Life Spirit required by God.

Noah was selected as being pure in spirit. This may have meant simply containing only Human(Life)/Satanic spirit (or at least the highest measure of Life Spirit remaining among all creatures of the Earth. The great flood was established as a way of harvesting all available Life-Spirit (maximum yield) while at the same time flooding the Earth with those Spirits of the Nephilim and the now abundant spirit of Satan. With Noah and his clan safely protected from the calamity and loss of life they were free to begin repopulating the Earth. This new Earth was different from the World entrusted to Adam and Eve in that this one was teeming with Angelic type spirit. New humanity would doubtless represent an irresistible host to all the spirits now in the Earth and to be sure everyone born into this situation would stand very little chance of resisting any form of spiritual possession and in this respect it would be reasonable to assume that mankind now all possess a measure of Angelic spirit by virtue of their having been born into the situation.

Now faith was also on display in the man of Abram. Perhaps it was Satan who brought faith into this existence. Is it possible that Satan trusted that God would retrieve him in the end, being magnified through the process of spiritual reproduction in the Earth? This faith may have been exhibited in a strong spiritual connection to God. Such that God chose the line of Abraham to be the example of God's plan for humanity. Perhaps it was a genetic uniqueness that allowed for a perfect fit for the pure spirit of God to fill the available spirit void. Perhaps this was the aspect that set aside the Jewish people as unique upon the Earth. The Spirit of Satan may actually offer a perfect fit for The Holy Spirit of God. In keeping with God's plan the spirit of Satan will detach from a human only to make way for the Holy Spirit.

Jesus came to bring to the Earth the Holy Spirit of God. The Holy Spirit replaces the spirit of Satan in the process known as Baptism. Once the Spirit of God is attached to the Spirit of Man it can never be separated in this life. All people who receive the Holy Spirit are deemed fit for God's purpose which is the creation of a corporeal being which contains the Holy Spirit of God yet also contains an Independent Life-Spirit albeit in an incorruptible form. Ultimately all of humanity will come to inhabit the immortal host thereby allowing the Life-Spirit to remain for all eternity. Death will be no more - having served its purpose in God's most excellent plan.

Our Part In God's Infinite Plan

Michael S. DeBurger 8/25/2016

Today I had another of those moments where I was compelled to write my thoughts so as not to lose them. What follows is the result of that idea:

When the Nephilim die their spirits are left to wander the earth and possess souls whenever they can. Jesus came with the power to cast out demons in his own name. Since Jesus is actually the son of God and his mother was Earthly would that make him in essence Nephilim? Perhaps when Jesus was crucified his spirit was left to remain in the Earth and possess the souls of believers. When you accept and believe that Jesus died and rose again and confess his name you are in essence casting out the demons that possess your soul and replacing those with the Holy Spirit. The effect of acquiring the Holy Spirit is what is called Baptism. Even if you are not yet possessed of a demon the result of belief is a baptism whereby the God given life spirit that everyone is born with is transformed into a Holy Spirit and affords protection from the evil one. A Spirit is an unseen force and where a single Nephilim spirit can possess only a single individual, Jesus came with the Spirit of God The Father that has the ability to possess anyone and everyone. When Jesus was crucified his Spirit was released upon the Earth and resulted in the many wonders experienced during the Pentecost (mankind now having the Spirit of God rather than simply the spirit of life. Prior to Jesus the only way for mankind to avoid demonic possession of their mortal spirit was to behave according to the law and resist evil (which proves to be a futile exercise.) Forgiveness of sins and sacrifices would offer some hope for a counter-measure to the corrupting influence of evil but in reality there was no permanent way to combat the influence of the Nephilim Spirit. When Jesus died and was pierced the issuance of blood and water actually contained the saving element of God namely "The Holy Spirit." Within the person of Jesus was contained enough Holy Spirit to heal everyone on Earth from the sickness called sin. When a person dies their Holy Spirit (as was the case with Jesus) must remain in the earth and is available for use by humans who come after the deceased. Jesus was allowed to reanimate himself in order to fulfill the resurrection although the body witnessed by the multitudes may not have been his glorified body. It is the members of the Church that make up the glorified body of Christ and because of this he lives even now upon the Earth. There will come a day when all those that have received the Holy Spirit of God will be called out of this Earth. Jesus will at last be given his glorified heavenly body and will have the power to draw his own toward the Father who will remove the Holy Spirit that dwells within the human form and place that spirit into an incorruptible body therefor transforming the believer into an immortal soul. The remaining Earthlings will need correction in order that they might receive the Holy Spirit that comes by finally confessing and believing in the life saving name of Christ Jesus. Those who are possessed by the evil Nephilim spirits will be unable to receive the Holy Spirit and will need to be cast into the fire to remove (by destruction) the evil spirit. Those who possessed the evil will be risen once again free of the evil that prevented their receipt of the holy spirit and will be corrected and will ultimately be able to take advantage of the Holy Spirit offered to all others. Once all of Humanity has been given their incorruptible bodies we will be fit for God's purpose and can begin our eternal existence beside our Brother and Savior, The Lord Jesus Christ; when we will all truly be children of The Omnipotent Supreme Holy God The Father. This God alone has the ability to manipulate the flow of time and will likely do so as he harvests this world for all it is worth in Holy + Living Spirit. With the knowledge of such great power and love we find our assurance and hope in our forever participation in God's infinite plan.
